ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention describes novel microfluidic methods for performing biochemical analysis involving multiple steps. Microfluidic devices that can be used for performing such assays are also described. The uses of such methods include genomic and proteomic analysis, diagnostic assays, and drug discovery.